Hopefully, everyone is enjoying a good start to the New Year. We look forward to bringing you several beneficial programs in 2022. We will be starting the year off with a guest speaker from the Illinois Manufacturers Association. With supply chain issues, there are constant questions of where we are with domestic supply chain. Mark Denzler will address domestic supply chain challenges, issues, and expectations.

Mark Denzler is president & CEO of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association and Secretary/Treasurer of the IMA Education Foundation. Founded in 1893, the IMA is the oldest and one of the largest state manufacturing trade associations in the United States. Mark is the leading advocate for the state's manufacturing companies and the 580,000 women and men who make things in Illinois. He is an effective and bipartisan advocate with a strong record of success.

Prior to his appointment as IMA president & CEO, Mark served as the Vice President & COO of the organization where he oversaw government affairs, membership, and human resources. Mark's previous experience including leading government affairs efforts in Illinois for State Farm Insurance, a Fortune 50 company headquartered in Bloomington. For more than six years, Mark worked as a legislative analyst for the House Republican Leader including serving as a caucus liaison to Governor Edgar's Ikenberry Commission on education funding. In addition, Mark managed several campaigns across Illinois and spent a brief time on the Washington D.C. staff of Congressman Tom Ewing.
